Women's Lives 100 Years After The Vote: How Far Have We Come

Monday, 29 January

Part of the Cognita series of Club events with women in mind

6.30pm for 7pm start – ends 8pm

The Loft

100 years after the Representation of the People's Act, in some respects, women have come very far in private and public life but hardly any distance in others. We still face unequal pay; we still face harassment; we still face unequal boardroom representation.

A group of panellists will discuss the upsides and the downsides of life for the modern woman.

This discussion is curated by Editorial Intelligence and chaired by their Founder
Julia Hobsbawm OBE

Panellists include:

Allyson Stewart-Allen - Chief Executive, International Marketing Partners

Baroness Helena Kennedy QC - Baroness Kennedy of The Shaws

Joy Lo Dico - Editor, Londoner's Diary and Feature Writer at Evening Standard

An audience Q&A will follow the panel discussion.

This event is free for members and their guests and will include a welcome drink on arrival.

To be added to the guest list, please contact Charlotte

To book for dinner before or after the panel discussion, please contact Reservations
